

bptw launches practice book

For immediate release

21 January 2009

bptw has launched its practice book – CELEBRATING DIFFERENCES. The book covers work carried out by the practice spanning the last 20 years, illustrating socially and environmentally conscious design.

CELEBRATING DIFFERENCES presents our work in all its diversity, exploring the approach we take to design and providing an in-depth insight into both the practice's philosophy and its working methods.

Interspersed throughout the book are case studies of key projects, including the award-winning public housing developments such as Pepys, Elmington and the Peckham neighbourhood, commercial buildings and the masterplanning of housing projects. Each case study follows an in-depth exploration into the complicated, and often protracted consultation process, noting the problems and triumphs of each from conception through to the built result.

– Ends.
